Americans Open Drive To Make Junction with Bradley's Forces

Troops Are Advancing within Less than Fifteen Miles of the Swiss Border, Reports Reveal

By NOLAN NORGARD

ROME, Sept. 1. (AP)—American troops who drove to Grenoble in a lightning dash from the Riviera last week have spread on more than fifteen miles beyond the city and are advancing within less than fifty-five miles of the Swiss border, it was officially disclosed today.

An announcement said the column was operating north of Volon, fifteen miles northwest of Grenoble and but forty-four miles from Lyon, through which battered remnants of the Nineteenth German Army were fleeing from Southern France. The German radio reported earlier in the week that vanguards of the Grenoble force had reached the Swiss border near Geneva, but this was not confirmed by Allied sources.

Presence of the column southeast of Lyon offered a flanking threat to Nazi troops fighting fierce rearguard actions against pursuing Americans between Valence and Lyon while the main body of enemy troops pelted northward in a desperate attempt to escape to Germany.

Capt. Ludwig Sterner, Nazi radio commentator, said Friday that the "increasing tendency of the enemy to outflank with motorized American formations the German detachment movement had increased the difficulties of German retreat but could not prevent it." He charged that their own "divisions" in Lyon had been "nearly completely defeated by German rearguards."

German prisoners said that the weary, disorganized enemy units being hauled up the valley had been put strictly on their own by their commanders—told to get back to Germany by their own resources. A report from Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's headquarters quoted captured Gen. Otto Richter, commander of the German One Hundred and Ninety-Eighth Infantry Division, as saying that "the Nineteenth army is undertaking to extricate itself from Southeast France by any means possible."

An ardent Nazi, Richter predicted that at the westward defense line the Germans will bring out another secret weapon.

French troops moving up the west side of the Rhone valley captured St. Agreffe, twenty-five miles west and slightly north of Valence and cleared the enemy from the west bank of the river to a point opposite Valence.

Pope Pius Asks Christian Peace In Radio Appeal

By GEORGE BRIA

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 1. (AP)—Pope Pius XII appeared in a world broadcast today for a peace founded on Christian principles, acknowledging that the use of force might be necessary to prevent future wars and, although defending the right of private property, condemned a "capitalism" which "arrogates to itself an unlimited right over property."

The address, made on the fifth anniversary of the war's outbreak and broadcast by Vatican radio, stressed the necessity of collaboration by all nations in the maintenance of security.

The pontiff should share with the victors "not only rights and duties but also in the benefits of a true civilization" in the new era, the pontiff said.

Appeal for Italy
He made a special appeal in behalf of Italy—fighting against "misery, famine, unemployment and economic unrest"—and said "prompt and effective remedies" were needed with the approach of winter.

The entire address underlined the imminence of the end of the war in Europe. "The hands on the clock of history are now pointing to an hour both grave and decisive for all mankind," he said.

A special authorization of Allied authorities electricity was furnished throughout Rome so that Romans could hear the broadcast, and the Allies set up loudspeakers in several squares.

Most of the Holy Father's address dwelt on the economic world of tomorrow after the end of the "tremendous tragedy," a future period when he said men expect far-reaching and definite betterment of economic and social conditions.

"Ilusory Hopes" Raised
But he warned that the promises of many statesmen, the many plans and proposals of experts and specialists had given rise in the victims of unhealthy social orders "ilusory hopes of a complete rebirth of the world and to an over-enthusiastic expectation of a millennium of universal happiness."

Baruch Favors More Liberal Benefits Bill

White House Adviser Declares House Measure "Inadequate"

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch's comment that House-approved demobilization legislation is "inadequate" brought from Rep. Doughton (D-NC) the reply today that "it is not the time to hastily enact legislation costing unknown billions when the atmosphere is polluted with political considerations."

"Congress has not closed the doors on relieving unemployment," Doughton said.

The House yesterday passed a demobilization and reconversion bill drafted by its Ways and Means committee, headed by Doughton. The committee agreed with the Senate to leave unemployment compensation to states, but junked Senate provisions for retraining workers for other jobs, transportation back home, and blanketing 3,500,000 federal workers under unemployment compensation protection.

Baruch, presidential adviser who spent a hunk out of his own funds in buying railroad tickets to get stranded former government workers out of Washington after the last war, said in a statement today that unemployment compensation is "must legislation." The House bill "seems certainly inadequate," he said.

"Our opinion," Doughton said at the capitol, "is that this is as far as we can go at this time."

"If there is to be considerable unemployment, I hope we can see its approach in time to provide the necessary legislative remedy," x x x what we have done does not close the books on relieving unemployment if it occurs, but in my judgment we can do a better job when we know just how serious, if at all, the problem is likely to become."

Both Doughton and Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, ranking Ways and Means Republican, contended that state unemployment compensation funds are adequate to take care of unemployment problems for the present. The House passed the States Rights bill after beating back administration-supported efforts to set minimum jobless benefit standards, with the government contributing to the state funds while leaving control with the states.

Senator George (D-Ga.), author of the Senate measure, told reporters the House bill would have to be extensively revised in conference "to make it workable."

Finland Believed Ready To Break With Germany

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 1. (AP)—Finland is considering breaking relations with Germany as preliminary to negotiations for an armistice with Russia, reports from informed sources said tonight, and it was believed the action might come over the weekend.

In London, Reuters recorded a broadcast by the Finnish radio which said, "The Foreign Affairs committee of the Diet met today and a statement on the foreign political situation was made on behalf of the government."

Expenditures Reach $16,000,000,000 Mark

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP)—Government expenditures for the current fiscal year which began July 1, reached a total of $16,000,358,613, on August 3.

Net receipts for the same period totaled $4,686,106,512.

On the expenditure side last year, expenditures for the 1944 fiscal year totaled $14,298,540,795.

The daily Treasury statement showed war activity expenditures accounted for $14,586,898,995 of this year's total.

At the same time Secretary Hull gave a boost to the prospect of France's eventual re-emergence as a major power with the possibility of a permanent seat on the top council of any peace organization that may be set up.

Michael McDermott, official American spokesman for the Dumbarton Oaks conference, was authorized for the statement that their work had progressed so far that it seemed likely a general meeting by mid-November might be possible.

Against that background, the secretary of state commented at his news conference, without details, that this government is for the development of a strong France.

The position of that nation—as a first state power alongside the

FEA Purchasing Mission Leader Arrested by FBI

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP)—

The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today it had arrested Charles Margolis, head of one of the Foreign Economic Administration's purchasing missions, on a charge of bribery.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the 44-year-old head of the China-bank purchasing mission of the FEA was arrested in New York city "immediately after he had accepted a package containing cash."

Hoover said Margolis had "demanded $9,000 and thought he was receiving this amount." He said a Bogota, Colombia, exporter of the bank, used in the manufacture of quinine, co-operated with the FBI in the arrest.

The FBI said Margolis's legal residence is Orlando, Fla., and that he has lived in Cleveland, New York city, and in Bogota, Colombia, since Jan. 28, 1943.

Hoover said the exporter came to Washington recently "to press a claim for a six-figure sum sought as the result of agreements he contends were made with Margolis."

Easing of Draft Calls Suggested

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP)—Chairman Costello (D-Calif.) of a House military draft sub-committee said today he believed an immediate easing of draft calls is possible in view of Selective Service's estimate that at least 11,417,000 persons now are in uniform.

That would seem to indicate, Costello said, that the armed forces are "over the hump" and would need fewer men from now on.

The draft report was submitted to the Military committee by Col. Francis V. Keessling, Jr., legislative service representative for Selective Service, who said nothing of any reduction of draft calls.

Keessling did say, however, that current draft policies should be adequate for at least the rest of this year—barring military upsets.

Should future induction calls remain constant, Keessling said, few men over 26 will be drafted the rest of this year. Current policies are concentrated on the group under 26, and in July, Keessling said, eighty-three per cent of all inductions were men between 18 and 26.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1. (AP)—The Republican governors of Kansas, Pennsylvania and Minnesota tonight called the Democratic administration the tool of "pressure groups," accused Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Harry S. Truman of inconsistency and termed the New Deal "name-calling, hate-making and backward-looking."

The three governors were speakers on the second of a series of "broadcast" programs, tonight over NBC, which the Republican National Committee is sponsoring as a prelude to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's opening campaign address at Philadelphia Sept. 7.

Gov. Andrew Schoepel of Kansas spoke from Kansas City, Mo. Gov. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania spoke from Harrisburg, Pa., and Gov. Edward J. Thye of Minnesota from Minneapolis.

Gov. ALLIES, DEPLOYING FOR BATTLE OF GERMANY, SURE OF SUCCESS

Americans at Sedan Skirting Northern Flank of Maginot Line

By JAMES M. LONG

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Sept. 1. (AP)—In these last hours of the fight for France an Allied avalanche that has thundered over and over again that the German army of the west could be defeated in Normandy, the imminent and final phase of the war in Europe.

From British Tommies and American doughboys up to the highest generals in command there is a quiet-confidence that the German army of the west could be defeated in Normandy, the imminent and final phase of the war in Europe.

Staff officers for weeks in the early stages of the invasion insisted on the Belgian border and the quiet-confidence that the German army of the west could be defeated in Normandy, the imminent and final phase of the war in Europe.

Within ten days after the breakthrough toward Paris the Allies stood poised on the Belgian border and the quiet-confidence that the German army of the west could be defeated in Normandy, the imminent and final phase of the war in Europe.

In a flight which equalled or surpassed the withdrawal after the defeat of Stalingrad, it was obvious that the German army could not muster another really organized stand on the soil of France.

Draft Calls Probably Will Remain Same

BALTIMORE, Sept. 1. (AP)—Despite the heavy casualties in France since D-day reported by General Eisenhower, there is no indication of a step-up in induction here, Col. Henry C. Stanwood, director of Selective Service for Maryland said today.

The principal attention of induction headquarters now is in finding jobs for returning servicemen, Stanwood reported adding that the staff of re-employment committees throughout the state was practically complete and functioning smoothly.

New Deal Is Termed Tool Of Pressure Group by GOP Speakers

NEW YORK, Sept. 1. (AP)—The Republican governors of Kansas, Pennsylvania and Minnesota tonight called the Democratic administration the tool of "pressure groups," accused Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Harry S. Truman of inconsistency and termed the New Deal "name-calling, hate-making and backward-looking."

"x x x they want a fourth term administration because they want a government in Washington that is indebted to them up to the ears. And they expect to collect on that debt."

Governor Martin asserted that since his nomination Senator Truman had not repeated his statement that the war might be lost in Washington because of "red tape and bureaucratic waste" because when he made it "he was only a United States Senator bent on winning the war," while now he is "a candidate hungry for votes."

Russian Forces Fan Out South, West of Ploesti

Reds, Speeding through Romania, 150 Miles from Yugoslav Border

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 2. (AP)—Russian motorized troops speeding westward through Romania toward a junction with Marshal Tito's Partisan army yesterday drove to within 150 miles of the Yugoslav frontier and also reached Bulgaria's Danube border with the seizure of the big river port of Giurgiu, thirty-five miles southwest of occupied Bucharest.

Gen. Ridion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army swept through more than 160 towns and villages, fanning out west and south of Ploesti, and south and east of the captured Romanian capital.

One report put the Russians only 130 miles from the Yugoslav border. Other Soviet units striking toward passes above Ploesti were reported within twenty miles of Brasov, Transylvanian city on the other side of the Carpathian mountains.

Reds Roll into Giurgiu
Striking southwest of Bucharest, the Russians seized Giurgiu, nineteen miles beyond the capital, and rolled on into Giurgiu, headquarters of commerce between Romania and Bulgaria.

Sixty-two miles southeast of Bucharest the Russians also reached the Bulgarian frontier with the occupation of Calafat, and 100 other localities were taken in the clearing out of a huge area of the Danube and the Bucharest-Constanta railway.

Moscow's broadcast bulletin, recorded by the Soviet Monitor, said Gen. Fedor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army also occupied several localities southwest of Constanta, occupied Black sea port. His men already had reached the 1940 Bulgarian-Romanian frontier with the seizure of Caracoram.

The Soviet bulletins did not mention any other sectors on the line. The Soviet bulletins did not mention any other sectors on the line. The Soviet bulletins did not mention any other sectors on the line.

But the midnight communiqué said the Russians had captured a dominating height in a lightning thrust against the Germans near Praga, Warsaw's eastern suburb, and held it against a counterattack which cost the Germans two infantry companies. The Soviet troops Thursday had been reported within nine miles of Praga.

Vallee and Wife Back Together

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 1. (AP)—One more chapter in the Rudy Vallee-Bettejane Greer romance—They're back together again.

Through a representative, Vallee and his wife—who divorced him late in July because he called her beautiful but dumb—announced today that they resumed residence under one rooftop last night.

The crooner, who is 41, was quoted thusly: "I finally have come to my senses."

Bettejane, who acts in the movies and is 19, said: "Rudy is the only one for me. Our marriage will last forever now."

And then as an afterthought, the spokesman quoted Bettejane as saying, "our divorce has brought us closer together than ever."

The couple married last Dec. 2, separated three months later for twenty-four hours and parted again (Bettejane said it was kept then) in June.

Under California law, their divorce does not become final for a year and the interlocutory decree is automatically set aside by the resumption of marital relations.

Waiver of Tuition Fees at State Colleges Announced by Governor

TOWSON, Md., Sept. 1. (AP)—Waiver of tuition fees at the state teachers' colleges after the coming scholastic year was announced today by Governor O'Connor.

The governor, in a talk at the Towson State Teachers' college commencement, said he planned to make arrangements for the change in the next biennial budget, to be submitted to the General Assembly next year.

"I agree with the members of our state board of education and with the state superintendent, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., that this change of policy is entirely justified," the governor said.

"The present tuition fee is $300 a year. While it will cost the state upwards of $50,000 annually, we can afford this in order to attract to the teaching profession numbers of persons who might otherwise be inclined to take up other vocations."

"It has been my firm belief," he continued, "that Maryland enjoys an educational system second to none in the country. But it is apparent that the enrollment in the teachers colleges for white students has declined enormously since about the beginning of the year.

"During the academic year 1944-45, a total of 545 students were enrolled as compared with 5,067 in 1939-40. This is only about half of normal times whereas the need for teachers is several times as great as under ordinary conditions."

14 Frenchmen Slain, Mutilated by Nazis

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
PLOMION, FRANCE, NEAR THE BELGIAN FRONTIER, Sept. 1. (AP)—In a little school house of this village fourteen male citizens murdered by the Germans lie tonight in a single terrible line.

I have just seen those bodies and they have been grotesquely mutilated. From each the arms and legs have been severed and each head bears axe wounds.

Relatives of those slain—it occurred yesterday afternoon before the German capture of 200 fled from this town eastward into Belgium—stand before the school and weep.

The town is half in ashes—burned by the Nazis.

Allied Leaders Probably Will Meet in Quebec

Roosevelt, Churchill Will Plan Shift of Forces to Pacific

By ALEX SINGLETON

LONDON, Sept. 1. (AP)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill will meet soon to plan the shift of American and British might from Europe, where they now fight victory in the near future, to the Pacific for a joint effort to crush Japan.

The meeting probably will be held this month at Quebec, it was disclosed today, and may be followed after Germany's final capitulation by another session with Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin sitting in to discuss Russia's role in the Pacific war as well as the future of Europe.

Roosevelt and Churchill met in Quebec August of last year to improve the master plan for the invasion of the continent. Not until these plans had been partly carried out in the organizing of men and materials did the two leaders spread their wings before Stalin.

This time it is different. In the Far Eastern war it will be the American and British forces, backed by combined air and naval forces of unquestioned superiority, which will have the initial task of softening up the enemy. In the European war the Red army had the job.

Furthermore, because Russia may need time to gather strength after her tremendous and long struggle in the west, it is likely that Stalin will bide his time before throwing in his chips with the Allies in the Far Eastern war, especially since Japan has poured some of her best troops near the Soviet Union's eastern border.

But because the potential stake in the East is so high and because he hopes to have an important voice in that area of the world, it is equally probable that Stalin at the opportune moment will send his forces against Japan.

These factors, and the question of when to try to convince Stalin that the opportune moment has arrived, will be considered by Roosevelt and Churchill along with such problems as where to concentrate the attack and the proportionate number of American and British forces and vast supply problems.

From the election angle approach it is argued that President Roosevelt would want to get the subject settled this month so that he can devote October to any final demands for campaigning which might arise.

FOLKESTONE, England, Sept. 2. (AP)—British and German coastal guns early today exchanged screaming salvos in one of the fiercest and most vicious battles of the war, and during the sea with fierce explosions.

The duel began shortly before midnight when British guns opened up against a target which might have been a German convoy attempting to slip between Calais and Boulogne.

After a quarter of an hour of British fire the Germans replied from batteries at Cap Gris Nez—batteries which may soon be taken from them by the Allied armies in France.

Then for an hour and a half salvos whistled both ways across the straits and thunderous explosions sent coastal residents scurrying to shelters.

"It was terrific," said one resident. "The land and sea rocked from great explosions as the Nazis pumped in the sea with four shells at a time."

Shortly before the bombardment started RAF bombers plastered French coastal targets from Boulogne to Calais.

A similar exchange lasted more than four hours early yesterday, keeping coastal residents in shelters during much of the night and heavily damaging several coastal towns. At least one man was killed.

It was considered possible that the Germans with their communications shattered and their positions on the French coast threatened from the rear, might be trying to unload their ammunition on England before the Allies arrived.

St. Mihiel, Sedan And Verdun Fall To Lightning U. S. Columns

Troops Racing Nazis in Attempt To Beat Them to Siegfried Line; Canadians Capture Dieppe

By WILLIAM F. BONT

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Saturday, Sept. 2. (AP)—American armies pounded at or beyond the Belgian frontier today and raced the Germans in an attempt to reach the Siegfried line before the routed enemy—beaten in the battle of France—can man it for a last-ditch defense of the Reich.

Behind these lightning columns, now operating at double the speed of the Nazi blitz of France, lay the fallen fortresses of Sedan, Verdun and St. Mihiel, and the breached Maginot line.

(With Allied Forces at or near the Belgian border, the Nazis admitted in a strange broadcast from Brussels that the Belgian capital might fall soon, but threatened "one day we shall come back.")

One Nazi announcer made a last appeal for Hitler's cause and admonished Belgians "not to show hatred against us or against those in your country who worked for us."

Another cautioned the people to remain calm, adding "we shall never rob you and we shall never pillage you."

SS Leader Hans Friedrich told the Belgians, "I know you are eagerly awaiting the British and American forces," and added "we Nationalists however will face any situation, x x x we shall never give up our principles. One day we shall come back."

No Longer a Battle
The fortress of Verdun, where 300,000 Frenchmen bled to save France in the First World War, fell with hardly a shot after armored infantry swept through the Argonne forest—still scarred and seared by the agonies of battles generations old—without a single casualty.

It was no longer a battle. It was simply a race for the Germans trying to get into positions in the rusty Siegfried line before the American lightning strikes.

Where the Germans elected to stand, they were overwhelmed by flying columns, bombed and strafed and pelted from the skies by pamphlets calling on them to "surrender now."

Battle columns streaming into Lorraine may now have brought the city of Metz, less than twenty-five miles from Germany, within their artillery sights.

Already hard-riding patrols may have lanced across the Belgian border, five miles north of Sedan and plunged into the Ardennes forest, out of which the German hordes, poured four years ago to subjugate France.

From sixty to seventy-five miles to the northeast lies Prussia, with her great Rhineland industrial center.

The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen declared the German and their Belgian Fascist friends were in flight from Brussels amid "scenes similar to Paris a few weeks ago," the Office of War Information reported.

Germany Must Be Occupied

NOW THAT the dreaded encirclement that has caused Hitler to shed tears of anguish and fear is almost complete, constant contemplation of a determination that there shall be no repetition of the situation of 1918, when Germany escaped full occupation by quitting when its homeland was menaced, is necessary.

It is not improbable that Hitler and his cohorts will strive, as the Prussian generals did in 1918, to escape having the Reich overrun by Allied armies by negotiating an armistice in order that many elements of strength may be preserved and that it may be possible to feed to a later generation of Germans the delusion that Germany was not defeated.

In this purpose Hitler and the generals must not succeed. Regardless of when or where the war ends, Germany must be taken over by Allied occupation forces in order that the people may learn from first-hand experience just what it means in the way of ignominy to start a war and lose it.

This failure to bring home to Germany in full measure the lessons of defeat was one of the great mistakes of 1918, a mistake that can be blamed on Allied gullibility, sentimentalism and persistent wariness. The coming peace must be approached with greater realism, sternness and a more adequate concept of the requirements of justice.

Regardless of what other terms may go into the making of the peace, it is imperative that there shall be unconditional surrender, occupation in strong force, absolute destruction of Nazism and the disintegration of its breeding places, and the transformation of Germany in so far as possible, from a potential aggressor nation to one that fears the consequences of criminal acts against its neighbors.

The Allies must not be fooled again by those who seek, as Wilson did, to draw a line between the German government and the German people, knowing as they do that the people of Germany have been as one with their fanatical leader, or by others who urge the wisdom of a soft, easy peace.

For 200 years Germany has brewed wars under the leadership of hard, arrogant men with a lust for power and glory and with the help of people who have shared the cravings of their leaders. The world has had enough of their periodic blood-letting and it is time that the consequences of their barbarism shall be visited upon their own heads.

Where Might Takes The Place of Right

LONDON reports a Berlin broadcast announcing rejection of British and American warnings against treating the Polish home army "contrary to the laws and customs of war" and averring that these Poles were rebels without protection of the Hague convention.

"Under international law, the Government-General (Nazi-held Poland) forms part of the Reich and provisions of the Hague convention therefore do not apply," the Transocean propaganda broadcast said as recorded by the British Ministry of Information.

"Persons who band themselves together there must be regarded as insurgents. The German attitude would remain unaltered even if the Government-General were occupied territory since the population of occupied territory has no right to march in arms against the power in occupation," it continued to explain. "The power in occupation is entitled to take necessary measures against rebels and armed insurgents."

Yes, but what of the moral basis for the occupation? What regard for decency and justice? How did the Nazis gain control of Poland and other presently occupied territories? They got them by ruthless aggression.

In other words, they stole them when they had no moral right to do so. They speak as bandits. It is a case of might making right—but that is the foundation of the bestial Nazi philosophy of government. The Nazis may treat their captives cruelly now but it will not be for long.

Not So Sweet As Pictured

WITHIN TWO DAYS after President Roosevelt had commended OPA Chief Chester Bowles on the absence of internal disputes in the agency, Harry D. Robinson, the director of the Standards division therein, resigns and attributes his action to a "do-nothing policy" with respect to control of clothing and other consumer goods.

The retiring official told a reporter, the Associated Press says, that his resignation was "in protest against a lack of action on my recommendations aimed at protecting the public, and the tendency of Congress to oppose price control." He said that congressional opposition was reflected in refusal of the legislators to "the price control and quality control together."

Robinson, head of the Standards division since June 19, stated also that he found objectionable a recent ruling of the comptroller general prohibiting OPA to use agricultural marketing administration grades in pricing canned goods. He said the ruling, directing OPA to use commercial grades, "simply means that canners may grade their products however they see fit."

Robinson said he had recommended a uniform policy in OPA of pricing textiles and consumer durable goods according to grade within limits of the law. He advocated this, he said, as opposed to "each price thumb against a knife's sharp blade."

executive making up his own mind whether to price by grade.

"I wanted something definite done and the program has just laid there," he declared, explaining that his recommendations had gone to various division heads as well as James P. Brownlee, deputy administrator in charge of price.

According to this, everything is not so sweet and lovely in the Office of Price Administration as President Roosevelt declared. In view of the bloated bureaucracy that throttles Washington administration, it would be queer if it were.

Government By Castoffs

CHARLES A. HALLECK, Indiana's able representative in Congress from the Second district, tossed a hand grenade into the New Deal's scheme to instruct the disposal of surplus war property to a flock of lame ducks now working under the administrator of that enterprise.

Calling for the records of the men selected by the New Deal to carry out this project, he found that only eleven of the 172 top executives of the bureau ever had any sales experience. Most of them, he told the House, are bureaucratic stragglers left marooned around Washington when WPA and NYA were abolished. He called them "graduates of the Harry Hopkins school of free handouts."

Washington crawls with these political mendicants. Most of them were failures in life, but had friends when the New Deal took over in 1933. They climbed on a pay roll and began to make a career of keeping enough friends to hold a job.

But disposal of surplus war property is a problem that should not be entrusted to a conglomeration of misfits, but should be solved jointly by management and labor, as the Hopkins do-gooders begin to give all this surplus away they will demoralize the whole economy of the country and create general unemployment.

These castoffs will remain a menace to sound government as long as the New Deal has the power to shift them around from one spending and wasting front to another. Only by stopping the New Deal can they be stopped.

Shortages Portend German Collapse

EVENTS are moving at a pace so rapid in Europe that no one outside the Allied supreme command has an accurate conception of what the next day may bring. But it does not require an expert in military tactics and strategy to discern that Germany is on its last legs and that inevitable collapse can not long be deferred.

By any standard, the Germans are done for. Napoleon said Providence is on the side of the army with the most artillery. The Allies are preponderantly supplied in that category, both in the air and on the ground. A Civil war officer said victory comes to the leader who "gets there first with the most men." The Allies have both superior mobility and superior manpower.

An army can not fight long without the sinews of war—food, munitions, fuel. There are indications of German shortages in food and munitions, and with oil production down two-thirds, the Nazis' reserves will soon be exhausted.

It is not difficult to envision the immediate future of the German army. Lacking mobility, it will fall into trap after trap and superior Allied artillery will decimate the remnants. Hitler's army is too weak to undertake the defense of German home soil.

Maybe the Teutons have improved physically, at that. As we recall it, the Germans in September, 1918, didn't run nearly as fast as they do now.

The Japs are reported leveling great areas of Tokyo's flimsily-built houses. Those B-29's seem to have started a real estate boom in reverse.

Those Nazis, attempting to flee the French front in horse-drawn vehicles, must realize it is the last time they will ever hold the whip hand.

Jeeps to be used on ranches, come postwar. It will be an even wilder and woollier west with millions of them roaming the range.

I Set My Thumb

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I set my thumb against a knife's sharp blade. The blade slipped and its steel cut deep into my flesh.

There was sudden pain and my flesh seemed to pause in shocked surprise. I snatched away the knife and the red blood followed fast.

I poured iodine upon the wound, and it stung fiercely and then I wrapped it in white gauze and tried to forget it. But that day I bungled my work. My thumb throbbed and it pained me and I feared it was infected and I would have trouble.

But the next morning when I unwrapped the bandage, apprehensive—I found that already it was beginning to heal. And it was healing from within! The mouth of the small wound was open but the deeper recesses were already joined. There was no ache, no festering.

Unordered, watchful, voluntary, a part of myself had already begun to heal the wound made by that sharp and alien steel. I had no part of it. I did not do it. Something within me, some inner health had gone silently to work healing my wound—and before the week was ended, it was but a new scar and barely a memory.

And were all my wounds to heal so easily life would be sweeter than it is.

But the wounds of my pride fester and torment me. Superficially they do heal, but deep within they throb and give me no rest. And when they heal at last they leave an ugly scar behind.

But the wounds of regret take years in the healing; and sometimes when I think I am wholly well, I feel a reminiscent twinge where the knife struck home.

The wounds that no man sees are the deepest of all and only the great antiseptic, Time, can heal them at last.

For the mind is more foolish than the body and it is like a foolish child that will not be appeased and cannot be persuaded that all is well and that wounds will heal themselves if only you let them be. When shall I be as the uncomplaining force that so silently, so efficiently, goes on to work when I set my thumb against a knife's sharp blade?

AND EVERY WHERE THAT MARY WENT--

Preventive Factors Are Declared More Potent Than Force for Insuring Peace

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—An undue emphasis is being placed on the steps which the proposed international security league is to take to preserve world peace.

But it is vital that a dispute not be allowed to reach the point of national anger which leads to an outbreak of hostilities or starts the people if a given nation to thinking in terms of more armament so as to secure subsequently by force that which is being denied them by the processes of reason or persuasion.

So the new world organization will provide many devices to get at the roots of war. One, of course, is to be an international court of justice to deal with legal questions and re-establish codes of international law. Another is to develop machinery of investigation so that full publicity can be given to disputes in their incipient stages and ultimately a decision or report made by the international security league.

World peace is feasible only when there is a prevention of the sundry causes that lead up to disturbances in an area and keep them from becoming intensified over a wider area. Any international organization which depends by analogy on the fire apparatus alone to do all the work and neglects fire prevention is not likely to succeed. While fires do occur, modern science and organization keeps them from devastating property and causing the extensive loss of life that occurred many decades ago.

Two War Causes

So it is with war. The causes of war can be divided into those which are susceptible of handling by a court and those that arise for instance, out of nationalism or materialism or national pride. The latter have been termed "non-justifiable" because they are not legal but national questions and can be settled only by disinterested tribunals in the field of diplomacy, if settled at all.

The world has not had any machinery to deal with the nationalistic questions that come out of the rights of sovereign nations to do as they please. The proposed world organization will place a restraint on the right of a nation to disturb the peace. There was in the Kellogg Briand treaties a universal declaration against aggression, but there was no provision to aid the victims of aggression or to defeat the aggressor.

The devastating nature of World War II has brought sharply into focus the need for international machinery to make all sovereign nations behave so that a threat against world peace by any one of them becomes a threat against all the rest of them.

Several Devices

But it is vital that a dispute not be allowed to reach the point of national anger which leads to an outbreak of hostilities or starts the people if a given nation to thinking in terms of more armament so as to secure subsequently by force that which is being denied them by the processes of reason or persuasion.

So the new world organization will provide many devices to get at the roots of war. One, of course, is to be an international court of justice to deal with legal questions and re-establish codes of international law. Another is to develop machinery of investigation so that full publicity can be given to disputes in their incipient stages and ultimately a decision or report made by the international security league.

Nations will not be coerced from the outset. They will be given every opportunity for amicable adjustment of disputes and for full debate. It is only when warnings from the executive council or the assembly, or both, are disregarded that the mechanism for forcing disputants to accept arbitration or for the decision of impartial tribunals will be invoked. Indeed, it is expected that the mere knowledge that at the end of all the debating processes lies the club of force will bring about the adjustment of most disputes before they can flare into serious friction.

Peace Up To Big Three

Member nations and non-members would stand to lose so many advantages by failing to co-operate that it doesn't seem likely that the peace of the world will be disturbed again unless it is disturbed by Russia or the United States or Britain—the three most powerful nations in the world. The international organization would, of course, exclude from the council any nation which has a dispute so it could not vote on its own controversy. The public opinion of the world can alone restrain Britain, Russia, and the United States no matter how strongly worded is the charter of the proposed organization, and it is because these nations are trustees of the peace of mankind that emphasis must inevitably turn development of their responsibilities toward one another rather than on the measures they are going to take to enforce peace among other nations.

The hope of the world still lies in the voice of reason and in the removal of those economic conditions which bring anarchy inside a nation and lead people in desperation to mean any deed even at war as a means of survival.

American Chord By Dewey Is Seen As Winning Bid

By SAMUEL B. PETTINGILL

Recently, I pointed out the narrow margins by which Mr. Roosevelt won important states in 1940, and how little it would take to put them in the Dewey-Bricker column this year. But this rule works both ways. Willie also carried several states in 1940 by hairline majorities; for example, Michigan by 6,926 votes out of 2,072,908.

Recent Gallup polls are encouraging to Republicans. But today's polls are but little more favorable to them than the August polls in 1936 and 1940. In November of both of those years, Roosevelt was from four to seven votes in 100 stronger than Gallup gave him in August.

The Inspiring Chord "Better administration" and "quarrelsome old men" will not win Dewey can win but he must first strike the inspiring chord. That chord is America! It is the Amer-

Big-Four Board For Keeping Peace Poses Questions

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the discussion of plans to preserve peace, at the Dumbarton Oaks conference and everywhere else, the discussers have reached the point where they face one unescapable reality. All agree on creating a mechanism for preventing aggression by any war-making nation. And all agree on the details of the mechanism—up to this final reality. I speak of it as a "reality," though in fact it is an imponderable, a mood of the public mind. But it is a reality nevertheless.

This ultimate barrier can be expressed as a question: Will the American people, fifteen or twenty years hence, when some war-making nation starts an aggression which threatens war and therefore ought to be stopped—at that future time, will the American people be willing that our army and navy be used to help prevent the aggression?

Mood Continuance Doubtful

In our present mood, we answer yes. But the question remains, will this present mood of ours be the same fifteen or twenty years hence? If we answer this question on the basis of past precedent, we are obliged to say no. For again and again, when such aggressions have occurred, our national mood was unwilling to act. We were unwilling to act when Japan began its aggression upon China. We were utterly unwilling to act when Nazi Germany began its aggression on Poland in 1939. So determinedly unwilling were our people as a whole that they cried out against the few who said we ought to act, denouncing them as war-mongers.

How to deal with the grim fact of our changing national moods is the problem faced by Dumbarton Oaks and everybody else. One can suggest a fanciful solution, useful for illustrating the nature of the need. We might take our present national mood and put it in some kind of a spiritual refrigerator. Then we might lock the refrigerator and entrust the key to some non-political person or group, with power to unlock the mood when need for it arises. It would be necessary that the custodian of the mood be non-political, for in restoring the mood at the time it is needed, he would be going counter to what will then be the popular emotion.

Practicable Suggestion

Lacking so fanciful a solution, some Dumbarton Oaks conferees and others suggest something they think might be practicable. The suggestion is like this: There shall be, in the international organization for preserving peace, a board of four persons, representing the United States, Britain, Russia and China. (Later, perhaps to be enlarged by adding representatives of other nations.) This board is to keep constant watchful survey over the world. Whenever they see aggression or other threat of war showing its head, they are to act. They are to say that the armed forces of the nations composing the international organization shall put down the aggression. Carefully, the suggestion provides that if any one member of the board—the representative of the United States, for example—does not vote with the others, then the armed forces of the United States need not take part. But if he does vote with the others, our armed forces must take part.

Power over Armed Forces

Obviously the representative of the United States would have extraordinary power—power to put the armed forces of the United States into action against another nation without any declaration of war by Congress.

Much would depend on how this representative of the United States would be appointed, and whether he would be political-minded—whether he would be free to act without regard to the mood of the country at the time. It is suggested that he be appointed by Congress—this to compensate Congress for taking away part of its present exclusive power to declare war. Whether appointed by Congress or by the president, would he, knowing that his action would be contrary to the national mood of the time, nevertheless act? Would he, knowing that popular resentment against his action might vent itself upon the party in power, nevertheless act? Would he, knowing that the party then in power might make political capital of his action, nevertheless act?

Morning Motto

Honesty is one part of eloquence. We persuade others by being in earnest ourselves.—HAZLITT.

Marriage License Total for August Hits Mark of 236

Falls Two Short of June's
Record for First Eight Months

Nine marriage licenses issued Thursday in the office of the clerk of circuit court increased to 236 the number granted in the month of August, a check of records disclosed. The figure is only two short of the 238 licenses granted in June, the record month of the year.

On the other side of the marriage ledger, thirty-four suits for divorce and one for annulment of marriage were filed in August in circuit court.

A comparison of marriage license figures shows that the 236 issued this past month is twenty-two more than were granted in August a year ago and fifteen more than were issued in July of this year.

1,651 Permits Granted
For the first eight months of 1944, a total of 1,651 marriage permits have been granted, but attacks in the clerk's office say it isn't very likely that in the next four months enough permits will be issued to equal the record of 1938 when 3,916 licenses were granted in the twelve-month period.

In August of 1932, 860 licenses were issued or 424 more than were issued in August 1944; in September 1938, the all-time record of 668 licenses issued in one month was set. Officials pointed out that on December 9, 1938, the forty-eight hour waiting period before licenses could be issued became effective and thereafter the monthly total of licenses issued dropped sharply.

Licenses Issued
Licenses were issued Thursday to: Donald Leo Palmer and Rita Elaine Drumm, Cumberland; Felix Goehner and Wanda Lee Calhoun, Moorefield, W. Va.; Rudolph Rehak and Edith Fraser, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Robert Woodall and Elizabeth Harris, Cleveland, Ohio; Paul Matthew Gillo and Maurine Evelyn Hamilton, Uniontown, Pa.; Marvin Simon and Tulla Chiffa Alts, Elk Garden, W. Va.; Clarence Robert Broadstock, Cumberland; and Dorothy Maurine Henry, Chicago, Ill.

Beaver Cornelius Doms, Uniontown, Pa., and Fredella Henrietta Hunt, Brownsville, Pa.; Albert Kara and Mary Pauline Raven, Baltimore.

Reconsideration of Road
Application Is Refused
HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 1 (AP)—A request for reconsideration of the application of the state roads commission for the completion of the Hagerstown-Fredrick dual highway has been refused by J. A. Krug, acting chairman of the War Production Board.

The WPB said that while the considerations which promoted the submission of the project were meritorious and desirable, they were not those upon which the War Production Board under present facilities policy could determine the essentiality of the project to the war effort.

Approximately seventeen miles of the highway are not completed and the state's application, asked that this be included in this year's program.

Militarists Say Use Of Gas Is Unlikely
By LEWIS HAWKINS
LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP)—The Allies with their air fleets could retaliate a hundred-fold against Germany if the Nazis should resort to gas warfare, military men declared tonight, but they added they thought it unlikely gas would be used in this war.

If Nazi extremists bent on ruling or ruining should employ gas against civilian populations in a bitter and resistance, the Allies would be in a position through their air strength to drench German cities, one Briton in a high position observed.

If the Germans should use gas only on a limited scale, such as spreading blistering gases to hold up Allied troops, the Allies would be able to turn that into a bad battlefield bargain because of their mechanical and air superiority.

Recurrent rumors that the Germans are preparing to initiate gas warfare bring no official reaction here.

When the officers arrived Mrs. Hedrick was near collapse. Sgt. Newhouse said, but soon responded to treatment with the resuscitator. After treating the woman for shock, the officers rushed her to Allegany hospital. Her condition last evening was "good."

Officers were told that Mrs. Hedrick lit a kerosene stove in the upper part of her home but that the wick smoldered and failed to ignite.

Achievement Day Plans Are Made by Homemakers

Nominating and Auditing Committees Elected and Reports Given

The nominating and auditing committees were elected; plans formulated for the September, October and November achievement day programs; and various reports given at the meeting of county officers, chairmen and presidents of the Homemakers clubs of Allegany county yesterday at the county agent's office.

Mrs. W. L. Maddock, Mrs. G. R. Golladay, Mrs. William Lee, Mrs. W. S. Rilling and Mrs. J. William Loar were elected members of the nominating committee. The auditing committee, which will meet before the first of the year includes Mrs. Maddock, chairman with Mrs. L. C. Drake and Mrs. J. C. Driver.

It was decided that discussion periods, rather than demonstrations will constitute the programs for September and October. Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent, will be in charge of the September discussion periods on current events and postwar planning. The project demonstrators of each club will conduct the October meeting when "What Can Be Done To Improve the Family Living Conditions" will be the topic.

It was decided that the November achievement day programs will be combined like they were last year in adjoining communities. For the county achievement program plans were discussed for resuming the luncheon or banquet meetings at which time Mrs. Vena Keller, College Park, will be the honor guest and Mrs. Herbert S. Rawlings will give a book report on the historic churches of the world.

Mrs. Maddock, state vice president reported on the "Penny for Friendship Club," which she explained was organized within the last few years and consists of each homemaker contributing a penny toward the fund for extending the club to foreign countries. Mrs. Maddock announced that she had taken approximately $40 from the state to the national convention, and hopes to have more this year when she attends the state convention early in October. She also announced that each homemaker will be assessed ten cents a year for the state fee in addition to the usual club dues.

Point System Explained
Miss Bean gave a report on the point system awarded winners at the Cumberland fair. She also pointed out the number of new contestants winning high honors from the regular exhibition. In discussing the points being formulated for the educational and cultural meeting to be held in Allegany county in the near future, Miss Bean explained the final plans will be made by the official board. Miss Julia Lewis presided at the meeting and read a poem entitled, "The Hickory Tree." Other routine business was also transacted.

Postwar Citizen Army Advocated

By WILLIAM F. FRYE
WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall has told army planners that the postwar American army must consist of the smallest possible professional organization, with citizen-reserves, because the large standing army "has no place among the institutions of a modern democratic state."

His directive, it was learned tonight, has just been issued as basic policy for all officers planning the permanent postwar army organization. It contains, however, a warning that the wartime army may be needed long after the defeat of the Axis powers, in order to help establish peace conditions agreed upon by the Allies.

And it contains also a statement that the policy directive is based on the assumption that Congress will approve a system of universal military training under which "every able-bodied young American shall be trained to defend his country," remaining a member of the reserve components of the army for a "reasonable period" after his training is completed.

After driving twenty-three miles north of Reims and occupying Reims, other American forces engaged the Germans in the Grand Forêt de Stigny, but it was unlikely that the enemy here was occupied in more than a rearguard action.

A front line dispatch said the American First Army was attacking toward Mons, seven miles inside Belgium where a fierce battle was fought in the First World War. Highways were loaded with American trucks, all hurrying north.

of the German armies in France were even beyond that. From Gen. Eisenhower himself came the significant comment that no defense line was better than the troops which defended it—a statement to which he added that the German army could never recover from its wounds of the past three months.

Pastor and Wife Honored by First Baptist Members

The Rev. and Mrs. Edwin W. Saylor were honored last evening by members of the congregation of the First Baptist church with a surprise get-together and informal reception, in celebration of the ten years the former has served as pastor of the church.

Escorted by Mrs. Bess Goodwin and Harold Stump, the Rev. and Mrs. Saylor were taken to the auditorium of the church for a special musical program. Mrs. Goodwin and Mrs. Sara E. Moreland sang "Gardener of Love," and Robert Moreland sang "The Lamp-Lit Hour."

A special program of organ music was played by Mrs. Kathryn Carson, who also accompanied the congregational singing of "Bless Be the Tie That Binds," and "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." The Rev. W. D. Reese, pastor of the Welsh Baptist church, Frostburg, was the guest speaker. Mrs. William Gatehouse also gave a short talk and recited some original poems.

Following the program the reception was held in the social room with the Rev. and Mrs. Saylor assisted in receiving by S. M. Groggin, Mrs. Gatehouse, Mrs. Virgil Rice, Mrs. Glenmore Rice, Harper White, Hugh Whitaker and Carl Herpich, heads of the various organizations in the church.

S. M. Groggin served as master of ceremonies and gave a short talk explaining the miniature clothing and armaments were contributed by the congregation for the pastor's charities. Beneath the tiny garments were concealed dollar bills, gifts of the congregation. A corsage was presented to Mrs. Saylor by Miss Mary Moxley in behalf of the parishioners; and a cake by Mrs. Richard Matlock. Short impromptu talks were given by the Rev. H. O. Walters, pastor of the First English church, Frostburg; and the Rev. W. Randolph Keefe, of Grace church, this city.

Refreshments were served under the chairmanship of Mrs. Virgil Rice, by members of the Aid society. White predominated in the decorations of the church auditorium with white candles, white, orchid and pink gladioli; while pink predominated in the social room. A low crystal bowl of pink flowers centered the refreshment table, which was covered with a lace cloth and pink tapers in crystal candelabra were at either end. Pink also predominated in the bouquets of assorted flowers which decorated the room. Approximately 235 members attended.

1,126 Aviators Are Evacuated From Romania

By GEORGE TUCKER

U. S. FIFTEENTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Italy, Sept. 1 (AP)—Fleets of Flying Fortresses have made a spectacular mass evacuation to Italian soil of 1,126 American and British aviators who had been shot down and interned in Romania during the last year.

Of the first American airmen to land, 670 were in excellent condition, fifty were wounded, seventeen were on crutches and ten were stretcher cases. They were flown from a field three miles outside Bucharest.

As the big bombers rumbled to a halt on the runways at the base, the first flaming strike was suddenly swept by delirium—shouting, cheering and falling into each other's arms.

But behind their elation lay a grim story of one of the fiercest and decisive battles of the war—the big battle to knock out Hitler's oil sources at Ploesti.

During this battle for Ploesti more than 2,000 Allied planes were shot down and the loss in planes was at least 270, of which 223 were bombers.

The happy fliers who came back today therefore were only about one-third of the number shot down in the first flaming strike was thrown at Romania Aug. 1, 1943.

The men without exception said the flak over Ploesti was the heaviest and most deadly in the world. The Germans were so adept at defense they were able to blackout the target completely by smoke long before the bombers could make a bomb run over the oil fields.

Air defense also was strong and even the Fortresses making the evacuation run encountered continual fighter opposition both going and coming. The bombers were strongly escorted by fighters and one Mustang was shot down.

But all that was ancient history today with the Russians solidly in control of Ploesti and more than a thousand of the missing American airmen back on Allied soil.

Bulgarian Regime Falls; Armistice Talks Suspended

By WADE WERNER

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP)—Another Axis government—that of Premier Ivan Bagrianov, of Bulgaria—was wrecked and fell today, adding to the wreckage of Adolf Hitler's crumbling military and political setup in the Balkans but temporarily suspending Bulgarian armistice talks in Cairo.

An initial conversation between American and British diplomats and the two-man Bulgarian peace mission took place before news of the resignation was received.

Talks apparently will not be resumed until a new government is formed in Sofia. One report in Cairo said Bagrianov might form a leftist government to continue the armistice overtures.

The Bulgarian delegation is headed by Stojan Moshanoff, former president of the Sobranje (parliament) and a close friend of Bagrianov. The other member is Colonel Zhelezkov, former military attaché at Ankara.

Bagrianov himself broadcast over Sofia radio the announcement of the resignation of his three-month-old government, which recently tried and failed to wriggle out of the war into "neutrality" and then sent peace delegates to Cairo to sign an armistice with the Allies.

"The fallen cabinet will continue to administer affairs of state pending formation of a new government," Bagrianov said.

Maryland Farmers May Use Own Lumber

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 1 (AP)—State Agricultural Adjustment Agency officials announced that Maryland farmers would not require purchase certificates to receive up to 5,000 board feet of lumber cut from their own logs by any sawmill under a War Production Board ruling effective today.

The logs must be cut from trees on the farmers' own land, officials said.

Under a previous rule, only mills cutting less than 100,000 board feet a year could return to farmers custom-sawed lumber without a purchase certificate issued by an AAA committee.

Survey Shows Public Is Confused On Europe's Postwar Requirements

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion
PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 1.—Once Germany is defeated, any peace arrangements must be acceptable to the majority of American citizens, yet to date leaders in this country have made no special effort to enlighten the public on peace problems.

For example, in a survey just completed by the Institute, the great majority of the public believe Germany should be dealt with severely. In fact, reduced to the status of a third-rate power, and that the Allies should supervise the education and training of German youth after the war.

Comment made in connection with this question underlines the public conviction that educational supervision of German youth is necessary to wean the younger generation of Germans from the totalitarian and military philosophies of the Hitler regime. Here are some of the typical comments:

"Yes, teach them democratic ways. Wean them away from Hitlerism. Teach them world spirit rather than national spirit. . . . We've got to counteract the military teachings."

Yet replies to the following question indicate that a great many people do not appreciate fully the requirements of such a policy:

"About how long do you think we should keep some of our armed forces in Germany to maintain peace and order after the war?"

6 months and under . . .	13%
1 year . . .	29
2 to 3 years . . .	18
4 to 10 years . . .	21
Over 10 years . . .	14

Fourteen per cent specified no particular period of time. The median of all opinions is between two and three years.

The attitude being taken by the public at the present time is emphasized in replies to the two following questions dealing with supervision of education and occupation:

"Do you think the Allies should supervise the education and training of German youth after this war?"

YES . . .	66%
NO . . .	19
UNDECIDED . . .	15

Dr. George Gallup

Obviously, if peace planners are thinking in terms of twenty or twenty-five years of occupation during which the youth of Germany is to be re-educated, a large task remains to be done in explaining the necessity of such action to the United States public.

The attitude being taken by the public at the present time is emphasized in replies to the two following questions dealing with supervision of education and occupation:

Shattered Nazi Armies in France Are in Full Flight

By KIRKE T. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst
Ripped and torn by lunging Allied columns, remnants of shattered German armies in France are in confused flight eastward between the channel coast and the Swiss frontier at a pace that virtually forbids a new defensive stand anywhere short of the Reich itself.

The Berlin-admitted "detachment" maneuver has lost all semblance of an orderly military movement. It is obviously leaving behind great segments of once powerful armies now shredded by the Allies to military impotence.

There was every reason to believe that the Belgian border had been crossed by American troops near Sedan, and that soon German frontiers leading to the upper Rhine would be reached and passed "to test out the actual strength of the Nazi 'west wall' before fleeing enemy forces in France can ever reach it for refuge or to help hold it against the breeding American power thrust into the Saarbrücken gap.

Scene of Utter Confusion
The rolling Allied sweep forward along the whole front was moving at a pace that apparently left even Supreme Allied Headquarters in the dark for hours as to its full penetrations.

A scene of utter confusion among German elements bent on nothing but escape from the Allied avalanche was drawn by press witnesses. There is no comparable German, Allied or Russian spectacle of total military disaster in all the records of this war or of the battles of a quarter of a century ago over the same ground across which Allied forces now are sweeping.

The pace was so fast that it defied accurate mapping of the front. So far as it was possible to trace Allied movements, however, it was clear that while Field Marshal Montgomery's British-Canadian wing on the left was busy trapping and mopping up the coastal area from Le Havre to the Somme mouth and outflanking the robot Couet to Calais and beyond, Bradley's American army group was knifing into Belgium through the Ardennes and storming toward the Saarbrücken gap into Germany from newly won strong points like Sedan, Verdun, St. Michael and Commercy.

Threatening Nazi Strongholds
They were threatening such potential Nazi strongholds as Mons, Charleroi and even Brussels through the Sambre by-pass in the North-western Ardennes that points the way into the plains of Central Belgium.

To the south Patch's Franco-American Seventh Army was fast coming up the Rhine valley, virtually in sight of its Lyon metropolis in a position to wheel north-eastward and join Patton's Third Army for the assault of the Saarbrücken-Belfort gap.

That seemed still the major Allied design in the fast moving action, largely a mopping-up operation against meagre German resistance with no sign whatever of Nazi intention to stand and fight short of fortifications within German frontiers.

The indicated main Allied assault from upon Germany centering at Saarbrücken could intensify Austrian wavering as a Nazi captive satellite. There are rumors of growing unrest in Austria to match that in Hungary, thus threatening the Hitlerites with complete internal collapse on their southern front before an escape from Italy and the Balkan peninsula could be effected.

Sgt. Domenick Is Officially Declared Dead

Westernport Soldier Had Been Missing since Flight in 1943

By GEORGE DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, Sept. 1.—Staff Sgt. Rowland Domenick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Domenick, 98 West Hampshire street, Piedmont, is presumed to be dead according to a letter received from the War Department. He has been missing in action since July 29, 1943.

The record shows that he was "the assistant radio operator on a P-17F (Flying Fortress). While returning from a bombing mission over Germany the airplane he was aboard collided with another aircraft returning from the same mission. Both planes were seen to crash into the sea off the English coast. Rescue patrol boats proceeded to the site of the crash but failed to locate any members of either plane.

In view of the fact that twelve months have now expired without the receipt of evidence to support a continued presumption of survival the War department must terminate such absence by a presumption finding of death in the case of Sgt. Domenick this date has been set at July 30, 1944. The day following the expiration of twelve months absence.

Air medal and three Oak Leaf Clusters and the Distinguished Flying Cross, awarded to Sgt. Domenick were made to his mother at her home November and January respectively.

Morrison May Be Safe
According to a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Morrison, 109 West Hampshire street, Piedmont, that their son, Sgt. George Morrison, husband of Mrs. Elfreda Biser Morrison, 1 East Harrison street, Piedmont, an engineer and gunner on a B-24 Liberator who was reported missing over Romania July may have been able to make a parachute jump to safety.

The plane was badly damaged and seen to go into a dive over Gueorgiu, Romania. It is possible he may have been in one of parachutes that left the plane.

The letter also stated he served his country well and exhibited great courage. For participation in flights over enemy territory, he has been awarded the Air Medal and Oak Leaf Cluster.

Courageous Customers Still Exhibit Desire for Peace-rated Stocks

By VICTOR ELBANK

NEW YORK, Sept. 1 (AP)—The few courageous customers who were around Wall Street today still exhibited an appetite for peace-rated stocks but the market entered the new month with much of the hesitancy that characterized August.

Steels, rails, motors, utilities and oils were narrow from the opening on. Prices of individual favorites stiffened at the close and gains of fractions to a point or so were well distributed. Dealings were among the blackest of the past several months. Minor losses were plentiful.

The sweep of the Allies toward Germany, combined with the triple holiday, again tended to accen-uate speculative and investment caution. Principal securities exchanges will observe their final summer Saturday suspension tomorrow and will remain shut down through Labor day Monday.

Facing a three-day recess over the Labor day holiday trading interest in the bond market was at a comparatively low ebb today and price swings were irregular.

Dealings amounted to $4,581,500 face value against $5,183,000 the previous day.

Rail, utility and low yield issues registered minor gains on average in terms of the Associated Press averages. Other divisions were unchanged.

United States governments were steady.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved Mother Mrs. Eliza Wright, Salisbury, Pa., who died one year ago today, September 2, 1943.

We often sit and think of her. When we are all alone For memory is the only friend. This grief can call its own.

I like to live on the withered oak. When all other things decay. Our love for her will still keep green. And never fade away.

Sadly missed by her children.

Two Cumberland Soldiers Killed, Another Wounded

Pvt. "Pete" Dickinson, Staff Sgt. Victor Zorman Lose Lives

Two Cumberland soldiers have been killed and another has been wounded in action, according to yesterday's war casualty report.

Pvt. William H. "Pete" Dickinson, 30, husband of Mrs. Mildred Dickinson, 303 Decatur street, was killed in action on the North Burma front June 4, according to a War department message to his wife. He was previously reported missing in action.

A former student at Allegheny high school, Pvt. Dickinson was employed by the local branch of the Harris Boyer Baking Company before entering the army December 21, 1941. He went overseas November 1, 1942, as a member of the combat engineers. It is believed that Pvt. Dickinson is the first Cumberland soldier to be killed in action in the Burma front.

Besides his widow, Pvt. Dickinson is survived by his mother, Mrs. Frances Dickinson, Corriantown, two brothers, John Dickinson, Lonaconing, and Albert Dickinson, Cumberland; and a sister, Ruth at home.

Staff Sgt. Victor Paul Zorman, son-in-law of Clarence E. Grose, Baltimore road, The Dingle, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zorman, Cairnbrook, Pa., was killed in action in France. A former Celanese employee in the war knitting department, Sgt. Zorman was stationed in England for over a year before taking part in the invasion of France.

Other survivors include three sisters, one of whom, Mrs. Robert Teter, lives in Cresaptown. Two brothers also survive.

Pfc. Glendon Ralston, son of Mrs. Nellie Ralston, 622 Laine avenue, has been wounded in France. He received the Purple Heart decoration at an army hospital in England, and sent it to his mother. A former worker at the B. and O. shops, Pfc. Ralston entered the armed forces September 9, 1943, and went overseas last February.

Davis recommended several improvements to the surface plant, use of a systematic timbering plan, a ban on such hazards as blasting with black powder, underground smoking, and the use of open flame cap lamps, changes in ventilating facilities, curbs on haulage, electrical, and mechanical dangers, and wider use of special protective clothing by employees.

The mine is rated non-gassy, but Davis noted with approval that one of the outstanding improvements since the previous federal inspection was the practice of mine officials in carrying permissible flame safety lamps to test for gas. Other betterments, also attributed to company initiative, co-operation of workers, or the adoption of recommendations by state and federal inspectors, including betterments to the explosive-distributing magazine and the guarding of a power switch at the slope portal.

The warrant was issued by Magistrate H. A. Loraditch, Oakland, and Fraley said Mrs. Llewellyn will be given a preliminary hearing after her apprehension to determine whether or not she will be held for action of the Garrett County Grand Jury which convenes September 11.

Miss Layman died Tuesday evening in Miners hospital, Frostburg, after suffering fractures of both legs and cuts about the head and face in the accident Sunday morning.

State Trooper A. M. Spioch said Miss Layman and several children were walking to church along the Finzel road near the intersection with Route 40 when the accident happened.

Minister stopped his car across the road from them to offer them a ride to church, Mrs. Llewellyn turned her automobile sharply to pass the standing machine. Spioch said, adding that Mrs. Llewellyn's car was following close behind the minister's.

As Mrs. Llewellyn turned her car it struck Miss Layman who was starting across the road, Spioch said.

Civil Service Board Recommends Heller Be Reinstated

The Cumberland Board of Civil Service Commissioners in a letter to Charles Z. Heskett, city attorney and airport director, has recommended that Charles F. Heller be reinstated in his former position as superintendent of the municipal airport, and that he be compensated for the period during which he was laid off.

The letter was made public yesterday and confirmed reports the News obtained Thursday night from a reliable but anonymous source.

Heller's transfer to the airport from work for the street department, however, was a violation of rules governing merit system employees, the letter stated, because the transaction was not called to the commissioners' attention.

Stores and Most Offices Will Be Closed Monday

County and city offices, as well as all stores and markets, will be closed Monday during the observance of Labor day. Postal officials announced that only special delivery letters will be delivered, although outgoing mail will be dispatched and incoming mail will be distributed to boxes.

The Selective Service board and the War Price and Rationing board will remain open, officials said yesterday, as well as the army and navy recruiting stations, the bureau of internal revenue office, and the railroad retirement board office.

KILLED IN ACTION—Another Cumberland soldier has paid the supreme sacrifice on the war front. He is Pvt. William H. "Pete" Dickinson, 30, husband of Mrs. Mildred Dickinson, 303 Decatur street. (See story).

More Safeguards Recommended for Ocean No. 1 Mine

Commendation Is Given for Mine's Long Fatality-Free Record

A federal coal mine inspector has commended the 250-ton-a-day Ocean No. 1 mine of the Consolidated Fuel Company, Inc., at Ocean, Allegheny county, for its long fatality-free record, but the government representative repeated recommendations for additional safeguards in the mine, the Bureau of Mines reported yesterday.

Employing fifty-seven men, the mine recently underwent its second inspection by Federal Inspector J. C. Davis.

Company records showed that the mine has had no fatal accidents since 1934. Its non-fatal accident record during 1943, however, was far below average; the mine produced only 2,161 tons per last-time injury. This record improved considerably during the first five months of this year when the average was about 8,700 tons per last-time injury.

Davis recommended several improvements to the surface plant, use of a systematic timbering plan, a ban on such hazards as blasting with black powder, underground smoking, and the use of open flame cap lamps, changes in ventilating facilities, curbs on haulage, electrical, and mechanical dangers, and wider use of special protective clothing by employees.

The mine is rated non-gassy, but Davis noted with approval that one of the outstanding improvements since the previous federal inspection was the practice of mine officials in carrying permissible flame safety lamps to test for gas. Other betterments, also attributed to company initiative, co-operation of workers, or the adoption of recommendations by state and federal inspectors, including betterments to the explosive-distributing magazine and the guarding of a power switch at the slope portal.

Two bicycles stolen from Western Union messenger boys between 10 and 11 p. m. Thursday evening were recovered by police yesterday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock, police reported yesterday.

The county official was admitted to the hospital Thursday in a "fair" condition suffering from a fractured left leg and lacerations of the head and arms, after police were told, he walked against the rear of a moving car on Valley street.

Jordan had spent an uncomfortable day and failed to show noticeable improvement until early last evening.

Beauty Contest Will Be Feature Of Textile Picnic

Servicemen and women overseas want books especially pocket editions of adventure and mystery stories, in their Christmas packages, according to Mrs. Louise C. Dean, executive secretary of the local Red Cross office.

Citing a list of suggestions prepared by Red Cross workers who have been with the troops overseas, Mrs. Dean said that the second item on the list was a windproof cigarette lighter, since lighters often become lost or worn out. Senders of gifts packages are reminded, however, that inflammable liquids are barred from the mails.

Durable shower slippers of canvas are useful, according to the workers, as are writing portfolios and fountain pens of a single type. A pocket size folder enclosing family snapshots is also suggested.

If the servicemen do not own one, a waterproof, shockproof watch is a practical gift. The Red Cross workers also suggest a dog tag chain of silver or non-tarnishable metal, and add that a pocket comb may be tucked into any gift package. Pocket-size games, sheet music, playing cards and harmonicas will add to the servicemen's off-duty entertainment.

For women in the service, favorite cosmetics are a good gift if they are packed in unbreakable, leak-proof containers. Bobby pins, a sewing kit or a toilet kit are also useful, as are soft bedroom slippers and a simple housecoat. Clip hangers, clothesline and pins (travel type) and a flashlight make practical gifts.

Mrs. Dean said that gift boxes should be mailed from September 15 to October 15. Gifts must be packed in boxes made of metal, wood, cardboard or strong double-faced corrugated fibboard, reinforced with strong gummed tape or tied with strong twine. Packages intended for gift mailing overseas must be no larger than a shoe box and must not exceed five pounds in weight.

Candy, gum or salted peanuts must be sent in airtight tins, and fruit cake, which should not be sent to the tropics, must also be mailed in airtight tins. Gift packages may enclose a simple greeting, and the outside may bear a "Do not open until Christmas" label, Mrs. Dean said.

Christmas packages and 12,000 sacks of mail composed the bulk of the cargo aboard the Gripsholm when she sailed recently from New York to Göteborg, Sweden, on her fifth exchange mission. The mail and packages will be reshipped from Göteborg to a Baltic camp and thence by train into German prisoner of war camps.

Essential Industries Have Reserve Gas Supply

The local gas shortage has not affected the operating schedule of Potomac Edison buses and repair trucks because a reserve supply is available to essential industries in this area, according to John P. Rodman, operating manager of the company.

Rodman said that twenty-five buses and about twenty repair trucks and cars are now in operation.

Although there has been no cut in the operating schedule of L and A buses, one or two buses serving the Celanese plant are out during certain shifts at the plant, when fewer workers need to travel back and forth from Cumberland, according to Ralph E. Lashley, general manager of the bus company.

Lashley said that there is enough gas to service the twenty buses now in operation, but he added that extra mileage is avoided whenever possible.

Release of Whiskey Expected Next Week

The 824 cases of whiskey, which arrived here six weeks ago, this week moved a step nearer the homes of twenty Cumberlanders who own the 9,888 fifths but who have been unable to get their hands on it.

Railroad demurrage charges were paid recently and although the 824 cases remain in the warehouse of the Lichtenstein Company under the name of the Western Maryland Railway, the owners expect to get some more good news next week.

The whiskey was sent here by the trustee for the American Distilling Company in connection with a stock dividend plan but a complication of laws and regulations prevented the rightful owners from taking possession.

School Cafeteria Workers To Take Course in Cooking

Miss Flora G. Dowler, McCall Award Winner, Will Be Instructor

A two-day cook's training course for cafeteria workers in Allegheny county public schools will be held Tuesday and Wednesday at Fort Hill high school, William P. Cooper, director of the Allegheny county school lunch program, announced yesterday.

The course will be conducted by Miss Flora G. Dowler, home service supervisor of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., who won the 1943 McCall award, a national recognition for her outstanding contributions to the Wartime Nutrition Program.

Cooper pointed out that Allegheny county schools have the most modern kitchen equipment and he added that the course is being given to instruct cafeteria workers in its use. Seventy-five workers will attend the course and a number of school principals have been invited to be present, he said.

Supported by WFA

Miss Dowler is a graduate in home economics of Ohio State university, and for a number of years has worked with many schools throughout Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia and New York, helping school cafeteria workers to plan and serve hot lunches to school children.

Almost 2,000,000 hot and milk lunches were served in Allegheny county schools last year under the program and Cooper said yesterday he has been notified by Niles S. Baldrige, state director of the War Food Administration, that that agency will again this year assist the school board in continuing the county-wide school lunch program.

Complete hot lunches will be served in twenty-five schools in the county this year and milk lunches will be served in fourteen. Cooper stated, and he added, Virginia Avenue, Oldtown, Barton and Central schools will be added to the hot lunch program as soon as equipment arrives from the high school will serve milk lunches this year.

A new kitchen has been installed at Johnson Heights school and at West Side school the kitchen has been moved to the basement to provide more room.

Start September 11

Most schools in the county will start serving lunches September 11, Cooper said, and will feed more lunches will be served to about 7,500 children and milk lunches to about 3,000 pupils.

A complete hot lunch costs from twelve to fifteen cents, twelve cents in most elementary schools and fifteen cents in most large high schools, Cooper explained, although, he pointed out, where a lunch room is maintained, no children shall go hungry, whether they can pay for the food or not. There is no discrimination as to identity of persons eating free or paid lunches.

Meet High Standards

Only Type A lunches will be served in the schools this year, according to Cooper, and he added that such a meal includes all the third of the child's daily food requirements. All lunches this year, he added, are taken from menus planned by nutrition specialists, and despite rationing and food scarcity, school children will be served a meal which conforms to the highest nutritional standards.

Most purchases of food for the program are made locally, Cooper said, and cooks are hired locally. The Type A school lunch will be served to teachers at the county teachers' meeting on Wednesday.

30,000-Acre Green Ridge Forest Is Closed to Hunting

Kaylor Says Action Is Necessary by Presence of War Prisoners

The approximately 30,000 acre Green Ridge state forest has been closed to all types of hunting this fall and winter, State Forester Joseph P. Kaylor announced last night in a letter to the Cumberland News. He added that the action was taken with the concurrence of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission.

Closing of the state's best wild turkey hunting grounds and Allegheny county's best deer hunting section is made necessary, Kaylor said, by the presence in the area of German war prisoners engaged in cutting pulpwood to help relieve the present paper shortage.

Danger of accident to the prisoners if hunters are permitted access to the woods, as well as considerations of public safety, prompted taking such steps as are needed to prevent the occurrence of incidents that might prove embarrassing to army authorities or harm the community, Kaylor said.

May Prove Blessing

He added that closing of the entire Green Ridge area may, from the sportman's standpoint, prove a "blessing in disguise," since it will supplement the role played by a 2,500-acre game sanctuary established by the game and inland fish commission to insure the wild turkey population. "We should encourage," Kaylor said, "that the area will be well stocked with such game."
